Youth Leadership Program: Shaping the Leaders of Tomorrow

Youth Leadership Program (YLP) is the key project by Combine Foundation, aimed at empowering youth with the practical skills that will help them emerge as future leaders of Pakistan. The program started in December 2025 with a motive to develop one of the largest leadership ecosystems in the country for youth.

The reaction to the program was shocking, as application came in from all over Pakistan. After a proper selection process involving an application and interviews, around 60 youth leaders were chosen to join the leadership journey of six months. The Youth Leadership Program follows a professionally organized system that promotes teamwork and leadership skills. This project follows a certain organizational framework, which includes Project Coordinators, Reporting Officers, Youth Leaders, and Volunteers.

Key Achievements

- 200+ volunteers onboarded by youth leaders
- 25+ webinars successfully organized
- 2,500+ participants engaged through webinar sessions
- Participants joined from Pakistan and several international regions, including Gulf countries, Africa, Western nations, and academic communities worldwide
- 10+ awareness campaigns executed
- Multiple digital outreach campaigns conducted
- Educational institution and school visits organized
- An independent hackathon initiative launched by a youth leader
- Partnerships and Memorandums of Understanding (MOUs) initiated with various organizations and student bodies

The uniqueness of the Youth Leadership Program is that it does not confine itself only to academic knowledge. Rather, volunteers and youth leaders get real tasks that are made to perform in such fields as leadership, team coordination, event organization, community interaction, etc.

Combine Foundation is determined to continue developing the program in terms of new initiatives, expanded activities, further education in leadership skills, etc. The Youth Leadership Program hopes to have empowered countless numbers of youth in Pakistan who are sure to be future successful leaders.

Kitchen Garden Festival: Growing Healthy Communities Through Organic Living

The most unique and interesting initiative organized by the Combine Foundation was the Kitchen Garden Festival, which was focused on promoting the concept of organic living and sustainable lifestyles among citizens. Given the awareness among people about the quality of food and its impact on environment and public health, this event motivates citizens to take an easy but effective step to ensure a healthier future through cultivating their own food.

this event consisted of several awareness sessions, interactive activities, and educational programs to introduce participants to the basics of kitchen gardening and its contribution towards improving their diet and saving money on buying food while protecting the environment. It also Focusing on the importance of using only fresh and organically cultivated fruits, vegetables, and herbs for daily consumption, this festival gave an idea of starting and managing kitchen gardens even in small spaces like rooftops, balconies, and backyards of one's home through the use of various gardening techniques.

Reconnecting humans with nature was one of the major goals of the Kitchen Garden Festival. In today's hectic lifestyle, most people do not have a clue regarding where their food is coming from. The idea of cultivating their own food helped them understand the concepts of sustainable living. The other major aspect was that the Kitchen Garden Festival was promoting organic food and its benefits. Organically cultivated food is much better in quality since it does not contain any pesticides or chemicals. It is much healthier for humans as well.

Children and young members showed excitement during the event, acquiring firsthand knowledge of planting seeds and taking care of the plant. This enabled young people to develop environmental knowledge from a young age, ensuring that the next generation learns to adopt sustainable methods while valuing nature.

The Combine Foundation focuses on sustainable growth by organizing such festivals. As a result, there was a great awakening among the participants, and they learned how they could lead a better lifestyle while having a minimal impact on the environment through sustainable living and practicing organic gardening.

Organic kitchen garden festival is not just about gardening; it is more of a campaign aimed at making the people practice self-reliance by growing their own food and safeguarding the environment while keeping themselves healthy.

Plantation Campaign: Growing a Greener Future

Environmental protection is one of the major issues today. To assist in creating a better environment and raising awareness about environmental protection, the Combine Foundation started a Plantation Campaign. It focuses on raising the importance of plantation, responsibility towards climate change, and green lifestyle.

The purpose of this initiative was to motivate people to become actively involved in protecting nature through planting. For that reason, the Combine Foundation decided to organize a plantation drive. This activity allowed not only planting trees but also doing something good for the environment. Trees play a crucial role in achieving balance in nature. They clean the air, absorb CO₂, reduce pollution, give shadow, maintain biodiversity, and counteract climate change. All the benefits of tree plantations were explained during the campaign, which raised awareness about the necessity to become environmentally friendly in everyday activities.

Another aspect that has been pointed out through such an initiative is climate responsibility. There are numerous problems today: climate warming, air pollution, deforestation, and unusual climate. This campaign aimed at showing people how to protect the environment from climate change.

The idea of involving members of the community also gained significance in the process. People of different communities were united to preserve nature and provide a green future for our planet. All the participants became part of a wider movement focused on promoting environmental sustainability and making a long-lasting positive contribution to the surrounding world. Apart from planting trees, it is vital to encourage people to embrace environmentally conscious behavior for sustainability in their families, schools, companies, and other environments. Every tree planted means more clean air tomorrow.

The Plantation Campaign demonstrates the Combine Foundation's dedication to providing environmental sustainability and responsibility in our society. The combination of awareness, actions, and community engagement makes this campaign an essential reminder that it is necessary to protect the environment with one's own efforts.

As the number of participants involved in the campaign increases with time, it encourages more people to engage in tree plantation activities to ensure that we live in a green and sustainable environment.

The Plantation Campaign is not only an important step towards environmental improvement but also an initiative aimed at empowering individuals to take appropriate actions, promote climate responsibility and become part of the solution for a healthier planet.

“Packet Palto Phir Khareedo” Awareness Campaign

In the fast-moving world, consumption of food products from packets is common practice. But most often people do not look at the ingredients and health risks associated with the use of the product. To resolve this issue, the Combine Foundation initiated a “Packet Palto Phir Khareedo” campaign for consumers' education to help people make wise purchases in terms of nutrition.

It was suggested that before purchasing any packaged food items, you should flip the packet and check the information written there. It will help consumers better understand what products they eat and how safe they are. Packaged foods may have excessive quantities of salt, fat, artificial flavors, preservatives, and other harmful ingredients that may damage people's health after long-term use. This consumer awareness campaign aimed at helping people understand the health benefits and risks of certain foods they buy.

This initiative will go a long way in helping people determine the nature of ingredients in foods and being able to take conscious decisions when shopping for items to take home. Consumers can read and learn different things from food labels such as product comparisons, serving size, and nutritional value. In addition to empowering people through education, the campaign emphasized the need for decision-making. Consumers tend to believe what appears in attractive packaging, but it's not the case as the real information about a particular food item lies in its label. People have to understand the ingredients in order to be empowered to make healthier decisions.

Healthy lifestyles require healthy diets and the campaign educated consumers, especially families and students, on how to eat better for themselves and the benefit of their health. They learned the impact of making certain decisions when purchasing food.

“Packet Palto Phir Khareedo” is an initiative that makes consumers more conscious to what they buy for themselves and their loved ones by asking them to ask certain questions.

What is in the product?

Is it high in sugar content or salt?

Do healthier options exist?

The campaign represents the dedication of the combine foundation towards raising public health awareness and educating consumers about healthy eating habits by encouraging consumers to spend just a few moments on reading the labels and making smarter food choices. As the awareness spreads, the importance of spending a couple of extra seconds on the packet label before purchasing. Consumers will be able to make smarter food choices, keep unhealthy food away from their diet, and become healthier and happier individuals because of that.

The “Packet Palto Phir Khareedo” Awareness Campaign is much more than an initiative that aims at raising public awareness. This is a movement that helps people learn to think twice before making purchases.
